

MICHAEL MANN TOUR POSTPONED DUE TO COVID-19. NEW FEBRUARY DATES ANNOUNCED!

In response to the Australian government's congregation ban, Think Inc. will postpone their tour: The Climate Crisis: Agency, Urgency, Impact with Michael Mann.

Today Think Inc. is announcing that its live, on-stage tour The Climate Crisis: Agency, Urgency, Impact with Michael Mann will be postponed until February 2021 due to the impacts of COVID-19.

Last Monday the various Australian State Government announced their official bans on non-essential mass gatherings of more than 500 people. This is a firmer position than last week's advice from the Federal Government and is on the recommendation of informed medical experts. On Wednesday it was announced that indoor gatherings of 100 or more are also unable to proceed.

At this point, some States have declared bans for 30 days while NSW has indicated an extended non-essential mass gathering ban until June 14, 2020.

This is an unprecedented situation and the need to look after the health and safety of all is paramount in these dire times.

For those who have already purchased tickets to these shows, the ticket will be valid for the 2021 show so you can still see your favourite thinker, live.

"The live show cancellation is a blow not only to us but also to the wonderful organisations we work with and those of you who were excited to see these intellectuals in person," says Suzi Jamil.

"However, we recognise how important this imposition is in safeguarding our health, and feel that our live-stream offering will be a great alternative as we focus on minimising the effects of this global pandemic. We won't be kept down."

Since 2014 we, at Think Inc., have been on a mission to tour the greatest minds on earth, promoting rational discourse and presenting people with ideas that challenge, provoke, and inspire.
